St. Charles, IL – Beginning January 2024, ANFP will be featuring a brand new recognition feature titled, “Early Career CDM, CFPP.”

Each CDM, CFPP has a special relationship with the credential as well as an interesting story about how they began working in foodservice.

This recognition feature is aimed to spotlight those entering (or who have recently entered) the foodservice industry.

Nominees must have earned their CDM, CFPP credential within the past five years.

In this dual media feature, there is a written and self-recorded aspect. Participants will write responses to the six questions and record themselves answering these questions like a script.

Early Career CDM, CFPP submissions will be featured on the ANFP website, ANFPtv, on our social media pages, and in Nutrition & Foodservice Edge magazine.
